DeAngelo LaVette uses his significant experience as associate general counsel of a health care management company to support clients nationwide in the Tucker Ellis Health & Life Sciences Group.

In his role as associate general counsel, DeAngelo managed cases at both the trial and appellate levels in state and federal courts in Ohio and Kentucky. DeAngelo's experiences include mediations, second-chairing a jury trial, and preparing offensive and defensive pre- and post-trial motions and appellate briefs. As part of his general responsibilities overseeing the legal affairs for dozens of health care facilities, DeAngelo led and assisted in written discovery and depositions, as well as resolution and exit strategies. He also oversaw regulatory and compliance matters and outside counsel billing.

DeAngelo also served as a judicial staff attorney for Judge Cassandra Collier-Williams of the Cuyahoga County Court of Common Pleas commercial docket, where he drafted proposed judicial opinions and memoranda. During law school, he served as an extern for then-Chief Judge Solomon Oliver, Jr., of the United States District Court (ND Ohio), during which time he drafted preliminary opinions for Judge Oliver's review.

Born in Cleveland, DeAngelo grew up in Bedford, Ohio. He enjoys spending quality time with his loved ones, traveling abroad, and experiencing other cultures. In his spare time, he embraces adrenaline-rush activities, including skydiving and ziplining.
