Howard Kroll specializes in intellectual property litigation.

A career litigator, Howard handles lawsuits involving claims of copyright and trademark infringement, cybersquatting, Internet law, and trade secrets at the trial and appellate level. He has found great success in protecting the intellectual property of cell phone providers, computer companies, and jewelry companies. Howard is also experienced in complex commercial litigation.

Silver band-ranked in World Trademark Review 1000: The World's Leading Trademark Professionals, Howard "protects his clients in a smart, positive and energetic way, while facilitating business rather than being a barrier to it."

Outside of law, Howard enjoys history, politics, film, the Academy Awards, and musical theater. A diehard Dodgers fan, he has held season tickets for 36 years. Howard and his wife Sue are the proud parents of three sons.
